In the case of a fixed term public service contract, a probationary public service contract or a permanent public service contract, regulations governing the public service require a medical examination in order to check that health requirements are met. In the case of fixed term public service contracts, this examination can be conducted either by the occupational medical service at FAU or an official medical examiner from the health authorities responsible for such cases. In the case of a probationary or permanent public service contract, the medical examination has to be conducted by an official medical examiner from the health authorities responsible for such cases.

Depending on the particular health demands in your area of work, a medical examination may be required before you can be appointed to a position in this field. We shall request a doctor from the occupational medical services or an official medical examiner from the health authorities to conduct this examination.

The doctor/authorities requested to carry out the examination will forward a certificate confirming that the necessary health requirements for working in the intended area are met. The doctor/authorities charged with conducting the examination will ask you to consent to the certificate issued on the basis of the health examination being forwarded to us.

On the basis of the data forwarded to us, we will check whether the requirements for being appointed to a position at FAU have been met. If you are appointed, other personal data will be processed within the context of the employment relationship, to the extent required in order to meet contractual and statutory employer obligations as well as for implementing organisational, personnel and social measures, in particular with regard to staff administration or human resources management. We will create a personnel file for you.
